

UK Draught Beers

Welcome to the UK real ale bar.

This year we will be stocking more beers than ever before at an Ealing Beer Festival, 374 at the time of writing although this is always subject to last minute changes. With a wide variety of beer styles and beers ranging from 2.8% ABV all the way up to a staggering (literally) 11% there should be something for everyone. The selection is a split between returning favourites new beers not seen in these parts before. In a few cases not seen in any parts before!

One such is the now traditional Festival Special from XT in Buckinghamshire, this year a rhubarb IPA. Another is a collaboration brew from Kew and Park Breweries, so new we don't even know the ABV yet.

A few words on how it all works. The beers are arranged in roughly alphabetical order across three bars, each of which is named for one of our friends in breweryland. Once a beer is deemed ready. An A4 label will appear on the end of the cask. The more perceptive amongst you will note that the labels come in a range of colours. Partly this is to brighten the place up but the main reason is to indicate the style of the beer. The colours are similar to the dots on the following beer list and there is a key below.

I would like to thank all of those who have been involved in the process of selecting, ordering, preparing and serving the beers. All are volunteers.

I'd also like to thank YOU. The people who turn up and drink the beer for us. You are whole point of the festival and I hope you all have a great time.

Cheers
